This morning's guests were Charlie White, and Jeff Franklin's wife and granddaughter.

Today's speaker was Kimberly Bredemeier, executive director of the Evansville Philharmonic Orchestra (EPO). She has been with the orchestra in various capacities for 15 years. The orchestra serves the area, not just Evansville. Music is an integral part of culture, being, and well being.

There are youth concerts for those in grades 3-5, and lollipop concerts for those pre-K-1, the latter with a hands-on, you-can-touch-the-instrument approach. Music for life concerts are performed in assisted-living facilities and the like. A new initiative that EPO is working on will be sensory concerts, for those who cannot sit still in a concert hall. These will be held in smaller venues and tailored to the needs of sensitive individuals.

Alfred Savia has been the maestro for 31 years and initiated opera programs and the youth orchestra—actually, we have two youth orchestras! He is retiring, and the orchestra is having 5 guests conductors audition for his position. Each is in town for a week, and has to conduct a rehearsal for the chorus, for the youth orchestra, participate in a “media circus,” hold a public meet and greet, meet with orchestra staff, guild, and board, and conduct the orchestra in rehearsal and in a concert. Guest conductors were permitted to pick their programs, which this year include lots of young and upcoming talent.

The next dinner night out will be held October 17, at 6:00, at the Log Inn. The Log Inn does NOT accept credit cards.
